RED CROSS NOTES
Ladies! The war is not over for the cold and hungry people of England, Holland, Belgium and other European countries, and the Red Cross must carry on. There is a crying need for better clothes, warm underclothing for kiddies, and knitting of all kinds. The Irma branch has on hand a large quantity of flannelette for nighties, panties and warm dresses. These are being cut out and with full instructions are very easily made up.

If you can't come to the work room, call and take some home to make in your spare time. Yes, we know everyone is busy getting ready for Christmas, but it will be a cold, dreary Christmas for thousands of small children if we don't get relief to them soon.

PLEASANT SURPRISE

The home of Mrs. J. Fletcher was gay with streamers, wedding bells and laughter for the surprise shower given in honor of a recent happy wedding. Mr. and Mrs. E. Sharkey.

Mrs. Sharkey was completely surprised when she innocently walked into what she thought to be a "curling meeting" to be greeted by some thirty ladies singing a suitable rhyme to the tune of "How Do You Do." The program consisted of a sing-song, games, a solo by Miss Vera Simmerman and a piano number by Miss R. Locke, after which Mrs. Sharkey was presented with a table loaded with lovely and useful gifts. The idea of a shower being carried out with a white paper umbrella suspended over the table, and pink and white streamers down to the corners. The bride expressed her surprise and grateful thanks after which a delicious lunch was served.

The F.A.O. Conference

THE RECENT CONFERENCE of the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations held in Quebec City, was of great interest to the people of Canada. Agriculture is one of our largest industries and any matter which concerns it, also concerns the interests of a very large part of the population here. The object of the Food and Agriculture Organization is to ensure freedom from want or hunger for all the people of the world, through raising the levels of production in agriculture, forestry and fishing, and at the same time organizing proper distribution on a world-wide basis. This is the first of the United Nations organizations to be set on a permanent footing and its success may have considerable bearing on the future of the wider fields of international co-operation which have been planned by the United Nations.

Surpluses To Be Distributed

One of the fundamental objects of the Organization is to raise nutrition levels in all countries, and to plan the distribution of food so as to avoid surpluses in one part of the world, when there are shortages elsewhere. In the past, we have too often seen great surpluses of Canadian wheat remaining unsold, while there were food shortages in other parts of the world. The situation has not applied to Canada alone, but has been experienced by many nations, and it has been detrimental both to the producers of the surplus products, and to the people who have been in need of them. It is hoped that in the future these conditions will be avoided, and it is clear that more equitable and efficient distribution would be an important step in building up international goodwill, and increasing the well-being and prosperity of individual nations.

Information To Be Furnished

While the work of the Food and Agriculture Organization is to be concerned with international problems, the needs and interests of individuals are also considered to be important. Information regarding advanced methods of farming, soil improvement programs, credit, co-operation and numerous other matters will be furnished to farmers. It is also proposed that representatives of the F.A.O. will keep the farmers' interests before individual governments in respect to marketing and other important matters. It was significant that Canada, as one of the world's greatest food-producing nations, was chosen as the meeting place for this conference, and that Canadian agricultural experts took a prominent part in all the discussions. It is now Canada's responsibility to do all that is possible to make a success of this first effort towards practical international co-operation growing out of the United Nations organizations. It is a difficult task, but one which may be a great benefit to the world.

Price Control And Rationing Information

Q.—Will my husband be given canning sugar coupons, if he returns from overseas within the next few weeks?

A.—The preserves coupons, which also are used for the purchase of canning sugar, will be increased by 10 for returning servicemen applying for ration books between October 31 and December 31. This will entitle the ration book holder to five pounds of sugar, in addition to his regular supply.

Q.—Will I be able to buy a double-breasted suit this fall?

A.—Double-breasted suits may now be ordered, if you wish to purchase that particular type. Production of men's suits in Canada this year is expected to be approximately five per cent. higher than in 1944. Over one-third of the suits are, however, being reserved for sale to demobilized servicemen.

Q.—Is it right for a storekeeper to take out coupons which have not been used leaving just the valid coupons in the ration books?

A.—No. You should remove and destroy any unused coupons in your ration books.

Q.—My lady friend told me that she had received a booklet from your office which gave her instructions on how to remake a gentleman's suit into a lady's suit. Would it be possible for me to have one of these books?

A.—I imagine your lady friend was referring to "Miracles of Make-Do". I have mailed out a copy to you. This book gives many suggestions on re-making of clothing.

Government Astronomer Says Sun Spots Are Affecting The Weather

Weather experts at the Dominion experimental farm took a long look at their maps and charts and then agreed more or less that this winter will be cold—colder at least than last. Dr. R. S. DeLury, government astronomer, blames it on sun spots. While emphasizing that nothing was ever certain about the weather, he theorized that increased cloudiness induced by sun spots should mean increasingly cold winters for the next four or five years until solar disturbances enter a new phase.

MEET A CWAC—

The eighth girl to join the Canadian Women's Army Corps in Saskatchewan is the record of S/Sgt. Teresa Hoskins, Broadview, Sask. Joining the CWAC in Oct., 1941, Terry was posted to Documentation, No. 12 District Depot, later working in Drafts and Discharges and also in Central Registry. In July of '42, Terry was promoted to the rank of corporal and in December of the same year became a sergeant. In July '45, the first draft of CWAC was made up to join the Second Echelon, Canadian Army Pacific Force with headquarters at Brockville, Ont. "On the strength of being one of the chosen few, I gave most of my warm clothing away," said Terry. "You see we had visions of being in Kentucky and eventually, on some balcony, perhaps covered south Pacific Island, but the Japs decided otherwise." The draft arrived in Brockville about the middle of July, where S/Sgt. Hoskins was posted to the Casualty Section. It was here that she was promoted to her present rank. Repeated to Regina in October, S/Sgt. Hoskins is the second post to Paper Wing, No. 12 District Depot. Terry has two brothers in the services, one in the American army and the other a F/O in the R.C.A.F., recently returned from overseas.

Mounted Police Dog

Now Used Successfully In Tracking Down Criminals

A sleek, three-year-old Doberman-Pinscher named Prince tracks his man down and holds him just like the two-legged members of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

The force's annual report cited Prince as a good example of the efficiency of the Mounties' police dog service.

In the 12 months ended March 31, 1945, Prince has helped on 79 cases, travelling 3,800 miles—mostly in the Maritimes.

He was taken to Port Hood, N.S., June 28, 1944, to help locate persons responsible for a series of burglaries. A stolen bike was finally located and Prince put on the track. He led the police to a camp where the remainder of the stolen goods was found.

Given the scent of a blanket, he immediately set out through the bush and soon located a man and held him by the pants leg until the police arrived. Later he led police to a haystack where a second man was found sleeping. Both men were eventually convicted. Some of Prince's pals are "Ready," "Chips," "Rough," and "Smoky"—all good trackers.—Ottawa Journal.

ALCATRAZ ESCAPE

By JOCK CARROLL

Wheeler Newspaper Syndicate

A reflected glow from the city lights in the sky reached down to the water's edge and pushed the blackness away from the beach. About thirty yards out, where the night and the water met, the searchlights picked up Keeling in the rowboat. He had known that Keeling would be stupid enough to try to flee and that the machine guns would get him. His body would sink—the guards would think they got him, Bronson. Beautiful.

Meanwhile, thought Bronson, he had a lot of work to catch up on. There was Dillon—he had been getting pretty cocky even before Bronson had got hooked for shooting that cop. And he had practically taken over all the black market gasoline since Bronson had been juggled. Stepped right into Bronson's shoes. Bronson patted the gun in his pocket again. Dillon would have to come down a peg.

Dillon sat behind a big desk—Bronson's desk—and watched him calmly from behind a cloud of cigar smoke. His—Bronson's—cigars. Bronson felt his temples begin to pound with anger.

"Yeah," said Dillon. "Maybe that would be o.k. Maybe not. We don't want you to think you're getting a bad deal—but you're pretty hot right now. The way I been figuring it, you should go away for a while. Take a little rest." He smiled.

Bronson was so mad he forgot to be careful. He stood up, placing his hand on the desk. That young punk!

"Wouldn't that be just cozy. But—"

Bronson shrugged, made a little gesture with his hand. Immediately Bronson felt the hard muzzle of a gun in his back. That of them.

From a long way off across that wide desk, Dillon smiled again. "Been nice knowing you, Bronson." He couldn't believe it. Not him, Bronson! He was boss of this outfit! He refused to believe it while they took him downstairs—into the big, black car—one of his cars—and began to drive out the Beach Road, through the fog.

He talked then, rapidly, the sweat pouring from his face and neck, running icily down his chest, where his heart thudded, frantically. Double-crossed! Double-crossed!

They agreed with him, but they kept driving out the Beach road, through the fog, and the one-eyed fellow on the left began to unwrap the sacred-of-shadows.

Then they were standing at the edge of the road, and he was pleading, talking hysterically, throwing them off-guard, while they made ready. The next instant he had smashed the fat man in the stomach, and plunged between the other two toward the Bay. There were curses behind him—they couldn't see clearly in the fog and darkness. Shots. Something red stabbed him in the shoulder—but he didn't feel the hurt. And then the cool waters were closing around him and he felt safe.

He swam straight out for a hundred yards—then he removed his clothes—nearly drowning in the effort. Free, finally, his teeth drew back in a snarl. He'd come through again—he always came through. As he swam, his mind busily began to sketch plans—concepts in Chicago—a few he could trust.

He swam what he thought was parallel with the coast—his damnable fog! Make sure he didn't come back in there they'd be waiting. Dirty—double-crossing rats!

He was wet, near the end of his rope, when he finally came into shore. He had a hard time fighting through the surf—scrubbing up the shifting rocks bottom toward the beach. Then through the mist, he saw the black figure against the sky above him, and he was cursing, running, trying to get back into the water.

After that there was the chief of the siren, the cruel brilliance of the island searchlights upon him, the tear of the first few machine-gun bullets, and nothing.

THE CANADIAN ARMY

Ross Munro Tells The Story Of Its War Record In His New Book

The Dieppe raid was scheduled to take place six weeks before it did, and when bad weather forced its postponement, troops already embarked for France broke down and cried, Ross Munro discloses in "Gauntlet to Overlord," the first full account of Canada's Army given to the public.

Writing with authority gained from five years' association with Canadian servicemen overseas, as chief war correspondent for The Canadian Press, Munro has set down the story of the Canadians in a 130,000-word book just published (by The Macmillan Co. of Canada, Ltd.).

Munro reveals the postponement of the first time in his chapter on the Aug. 19, 1942, Dieppe attack, during which he was on or close to the erupting beaches for eight hours. Men from the 2nd Canadian Division were ready for the raid July 4, but tide and weather conditions had to be right. There were postponements, and July 7 was the last day on which the raid could take place. The heart-breaking news of the cancellation came in mid-morning, and Munro wrote in his diary that he had never been more depressed.

Six weeks later the same troops were sent on the raid, "a sudden decision dictated by the necessities of the North African landing which was being planned at the time and scheduled for the future course of the war. There seem to have been two purposes," he writes. "The first was linked intimately with the North African landings, which were made the following November. The second was the part of the main Second Front planning, which was being started even at that early date."

The war correspondent also writes of the operations he saw at Spitzbergen, North Africa, Sicily, Italy, France, Belgium, Holland and Germany, as the only reporter who has seen an army from "Gauntlet" to "Overlord" and the code names given to the Spitzbergen operation in 1943, and the west front campaign.

Through chapters replete with details and background, which even his many hundreds of news stories from the front could not provide in full, Munro takes the army from its formative days in southern England to its mighty climax as a partner in the allied assault on Germany.

The "fundamental reason" for Gen. A. G. McNaughton's retirement from the Army command at the end of 1943, was conflict between the general and members of the cabinet over the question of splitting the Army, Munro says. Gen. McNaughton's retirement was concerned with his desire to keep the Army together as an entity for the west front campaign, and his opposition to the dispatch to the Mediterranean of the 1st Canadian Corps.

It was intended originally to bring the 1st Division back from Italy in the fall of 1943, but instead the Canadian force there was increased to corps strength. "The Army command was at variance with this plan," Munro relates. He opposed it and was overruled. In the fall of 1943, the Army commander, whose health was never very robust, took ill and at Christmas it was announced that he was leaving his army command because of ill-health.

Munro says that Gen. McNaughton and the then defence minister, Col. J. L. Ralston, "clashed practically every time they met. The climax came when it was decided to send the 1st Corps to Italy. Then the differences between the two burst wide open."

Referring to rumors, current at the time, that a dispute between McNaughton and Field Marshal Montgomery led to the Canadian commander's retirement, Munro says that while it is true the generals never met eye to eye, "there was no convincing evidence that Montgomery had anything to do with McNaughton's retirement."

Munro tells of "subtle criticism" of McNaughton which developed out of the conduct of the 2nd Canadian Corps on an exercise eight months before the retirement. Although the Corps was comparatively new and did not have all its equipment, harsh comments on the general's tactics appeared in the official report of the manoeuvre and were distributed to various headquarters.

"General McNaughton's prestige was damaged and his standing in the War Office and in Whitehall suffered," writes Munro. "This probably was a contributing factor to his retirement."

"It's in the book."

"Fine, and what's your name?"

"That's in the book, too."

"I was outspoken at the Women's Club today dear."

"Humm. Who outspoke you?"

"You say you want a job in this office? Well, what can you do?"

"Nothing."

"Why didn't you apply sooner? All these high salaried positions were taken long ago."

Husband (the ingenious type): "I've invented a new type of woman's handbag, dear."

Wife (skeptically): "What's new about it?"

Husband: "The zipper's at the bottom. Isn't that where everything usually is when you want it?"

Overseas Gum Plan

The Absence Of Wrigley's Gum Puzzles Returned Men

The efforts of certain manufacturers to meet overseas demands during the war resulted in severe short supply in the domestic market. In the case of Wm. Wrigley Jr. Co., Limited, it's entire stock of certain pre-war quality ingredients was entirely used up long before the war's end. However, Canadian men and women received chewing gum overseas through their Overseas Gum Plan, which was most successfully operated for the folks at home through their retail storekeepers, who forwarded their customers orders to the manufacturer for direct shipment to Canadians serving overseas. Returned service men and women are now looking forward to Wrigley's promise to bring their famous lines of chewing gum back to all Canadian retail store counters just as soon as it is practical to guarantee top-quality ingredients and finest flavor in sufficient quantities.

The origin of how a ship came to be called "she" can probably be traced back to the Greek mariners who gave their ships feminine names.

WANT NO MORE BREWERIES IN ALBERTA

Irma, Nov. 17, 1945

Whereas it is the pronounced intention to have more breweries built in Alberta during the post-war years;

Be it resolved: We, the members of the Irma Auxiliary of the Women's Missionary Society go on record as being opposed to the building of any more breweries in this province and we call upon our provincial government to take the necessary steps to see that this degrading traffic does not become any more deeply entrenched in our province. The building of breweries would be a betrayal of the principles of Social Credit. Having the best interests of our people at heart we feel that the liquor traffic has no place in a Christian Society.

Alma Enger,
Sec. of Irma WMS.

This is a copy of the resolution sent by us to Premier Manning and our local member of the legislative assembly.

Don't forget the anniversary service in the Irma United church Sunday evening at 7:30. This is the thirty-fifth anniversary of the church and a special service being prepared.

PROPOSED UNION OF U.F.A. AND A.F.U.

Representatives of the Alberta Farmers' Union and the United Farmers of Alberta recently met with representatives of the Alberta Federation of Agriculture for the purpose of consolidating farm organizations in this province. It was decided to recommend to the parent bodies that in the interest of agriculture there should be only one farm organization in Alberta and that the Alberta Federation of Agriculture should be re-organized to provide the merging of the U.F.A. and the A.F.U. on the following principles:

1. Provide for the setting up of locals on a direct membership basis.

2. An annual convention composed of delegates of locals and affiliate organizations.

3. The direct membership organization to elect the majority of the board of directors.

It was also recommended that the organization be non-political and provision be made for a women's section and a junior section.

The recommendations will be presented at the annual meetings of the three organizations for consideration and endorsement.

1945 DECLARED EMERGENCY YEAR UNDER PFA

Under the Prairie Farm Assistance Act, the 1945 crop has been declared an "emergency year." Such being the case some 3,000 township in the eastern half of Alberta and the western half of Saskatchewan which have suffered from the severest drought condition experienced in the prairie provinces since 1937 will receive help.

The minister of agriculture may award to each farmer in a crop failure area "a sum of $200 or a sum not exceeding $250 per acre with respect to half the cultivated acreage of the farmer, not to exceed 200 acres, whichever is the greater."

Since the Act was passed in 1939 the only crop year not declared an emergency year was that of 1942-43. At the end of the 1944 crop year expenditures under the Act since 1939 totalled $43,741,382.23. Of that total, $26,526,042.76 was provided by the federal treasury and $17,215,339.57 was raised by the one per cent levy on all prairie farmers' sale of grain.

"Brothers," said the colored preacher, "the subject of mah sermon today is liars. How many in dis congregation have read the sixti-ninth chapter of Matthew?" Nearly every hand went up.

"You is the people ah wants to preach to," the reverend said. "Dere is no such chapter."

PARTRIDGE FLOCK DIVES AT ENGINE

It's not news when man hunts Hungarian partridges, but when the hardy little feathered fellows reverse the situation it is at least unusual, not to say somewhat painful, if the experience of CNR engine-man M. McCallan, 12827 122 street, is taken as criterion.

As his passenger train neared Viking on the return run from Wainwright Tuesday, a large flock of "huns" apparently of the feathered suicide squadron, hurtled to their deaths against the side of the engine. One, aiming for the cab window, plunged through and struck Mr. McCallan's left eye. While the injury was reported not serious it was severe enough to require medical attention.

Finding himself in a strange atmosphere of levers, gauges and mechanical noises, the bird paused only a few seconds and took off through the opposite window, leaving only a few feathers as evidence of his uninvited entry.

Wearing a bandage over the injured optic, Mr. McCallan Wednesday expressed disappointment over not having caught the elusive bird for a meatless Tuesday table delicacy.

CHRISTMAS SEALS NOW AVAILABLE TO PUBLIC

Festive "Christmas" appearance of His Majesty's mail these days is caused by the millions of Christmas seals that are being distributed throughout the province by the Alberta Tuberculosis Associations.

President T. L. Ferguson of Lethbridge said today that this is expected to be the greatest seal sale in history, as mailing lists have been increased to nearly 150,000. "We definitely have tuberculosis on the run," said Mr. Ferguson, "but we must not slacken on that account. Rather must we redouble our efforts, hitting hard and repeatedly at this enemy of the youth of our country."

ASTOUNDING growth of the seal sale in Alberta was indicated by Mr. Ferguson. Receipts in 1944 totalled $18,000. Last year Alberta raised $1,000. This year's quota is $90,000, and this high figure is necessary in order to keep up the Association's present program and increase the services. These include expansions in the work of the mobile chest X-ray clinics, rehabilitation and education.

ADFOUATE HIGHWAY PROGRAM AMA TOPIC

Adoption of a suitable hard-surface highway program for Alberta will be one of the major subjects for discussion at branch meetings of the Alberta Motor Association to be held in Calgary, Edmonton and Lethbridge this month.

Resolutions to be submitted will outline the need of immediate action by the provincial authorities in preparing an adequate road program to meet the tourist and traffic needs of the province.

Action also is expected to be taken on this question when the annual general meeting of the AMA is held in Calgary on Saturday, December 8.

The Motor Association feels that the time has arrived for the province to embark upon an extensive road program, and one designed to place Alberta in a proper position to cope with the flood of tourist traffic which will begin when the 1946 holiday season opens.

"There has been no distinction made between volunteers and NRMA men once they are overseas. Once a man went overseas he was a soldier and if his point score now entitles him to come home with his unit, he comes home. But the NRMA men get back only when the units to which they are assigned get back and then only if they have high enough point score."—Hon. Douglas Abbott.

LIGHT

SUBJECT!

Don't strain your eyes unnecessarily. It is poor economy, to save on light at the expense of your eyesight. Use adequate light at all times, and have it correctly placed so that it falls on your work or whatever you are doing.

Move lamps and furniture together so that the light is working for you, not you for the light. Also be sure to provide adequate light, correctly placed for children to study by. Don't let them strain their eyes using a light that is either too harsh or too dim.

Be sure to clean lamps and reflectors regularly. You will get from 25% to 50% more light. A damp cloth will clean bulbs (be sure they are dry before switching the light on) and soap and water is best for dusty bowls and reflectors. Discard those dark lampshades and replace them with light colored ones which reflect the light.

EIGHT YEARS OF AIRLINE PROGRESS

Five stages in the rapid development of air transportation are reported photographically by Trans-Canada Air Lines, beginning with the 10-passenger Lockheed Electra (at top), with which T.C.A. pioneered airmail and passenger transportation in 1937.

Next is the 14-passenger Lodestar which, in 1938 and 1939, was the world's fastest commercial transport plane. This is followed by the huge four-engine Lancaster transport plane which has been in the Canadian Government Trans-Atlantic Service, operated by Trans-Canada Air Lines, since 1943. The military type was the famed Lancaster bomber which played such an important role in winning the war.

Beneath the Lancaster is the twin engine 21-passenger Douglas DC-3 transport recently delivered. This is the first of a fleet of 20 to be placed in service at an early date.

In the lower photograph is the 4-engine Douglas forty-passenger luxury liner, on which work has already started at the Canadair plant in Montreal.

The new degree of air travel luxury offered to Canadian travellers by the DC-3, and the 5 mile-a-minute speed, plus increased efficiency and passenger comfort of the 4-engine craft are said to be the equivalent of any air service in the world.

NEW TRANSPARENT COOKER

London—The first women's electrical exhibition which opened in London recently shows the wartime achievements of Britain's women electrical engineers. One item in a wide range of new electrical equipment and devices for homes, schools, health and public services is a new cooker made of transparent plastics which enables the housewife to watch the progress of her various dishes while they are cooking. Other advantages are super-speed heats, flexible simmer controls and automatic oven regulators.
